The game features a unique takes on both sides. The Confederate forces use a highly combat-oriented approach, relying primarily on combat units as opposed to the largely defensive tactics of the Union. They are able to maneuver to take advantage of tactical terrain such as forests, swamps and rivers, instead of just relying on a static defensive formation as might be the case in conventional, traditional wargaming. They also have a unique flavor to their unit roster, where the officers of all but one of the high-ranking military posts are Yankees in costume, and each regiment has its own unique character. Units with more combat experience take on more realistic historical characteristics, while more traditional units, such as artillery, have more modern, game-like features. The North has a high tech infrastructure and weaponry that reflects the industrial age, while the South is a largely agricultural society and does not have the high-tech advantage of the North, not to mention the ability to make their own guns. In fact, most of the militarily useful production is carried out in the North, and a large number of weapons such as artillery are actually manufactured in Europe or the United States and shipped across the Atlantic, making them a great advantage to the North, especially early on in the war. The troops of each side are represented in all their glory, ranging from the large mass-produced 5th Massachusetts Infantry, who lacked the ability to question orders, up to the highly trained corps of cavalry who could be picked off one-by-one as they moved along the landscape. The playing field is represented by modern terrain graphics and an authentic historical map of the America. Features The Civil War Game provides a unique experience, its combination of realism and sophistication providing an unparalleled level of immersion. FEATURE LIST: Historical Campaign: The total game cover the following campaign, in order of play: -Salem, MA (April 1861) -Falmouth, ME (June 1861) -New London, CT (May 1861) -Littleton, MA (July 1861) -Yorktown, VA (July 1861) -The Peninsula Campaign: (August - November 1861) -Antietam, MD (September 1862) -Fredricksburg, VA (December 1862) -Chancellorsville, VA (May 1863) -The Wilderness Campaign: (May - June 1863) -Spottsylvania, VA (May 1863) -Cold Harbor, VA (June 1863)

College of Gort The College of Gort was an ecclesiastical college at Kilmacduagh, County Galway (Gort na n-eagal) in Ireland founded by the Archbishop of Tuam, Gilroy MacTiernan. Most of the buildings were destroyed by fire in 1938, and the ruins were also demolished in the 1950s. The university was associated with St. Patrick's, other foundations have been attributed as well to the college by some; notably St Peter, Killala, in County Mayo. A mystery donor of £250 assumed to have been MacTiernan has been linked to the arched doorway of a building, known locally as the old seminary, some of whose remains are preserved in the grounds of an Irish language centre opened in 1994. The site of the old Seminary, adjoining the ruins of the old Cistercian Monastery, is now occupied by Cahirciveen Castle.
